Killed by Lightning.

During the storm last Saturday, Mr. John Barnhart, living on Wm. Brubaker's farm in Flatrock township, was struck by lightning and killed. Mr. Barnhart had been boring fencepost holes, and to get out of the storm had taken refuge under a small walnut tree, and was in the act of drinking from a jug of water when the fatal flash struck him. We understand his boots were torn from his feet. He was a man about 64 years of age and leaves a family. He was a member of the 68th O. V. L., and was buried Sunday, the Grand Army boys having charge of the funeral ceremonies.

The book and stationery department, which includes blank books of every description, is rapidly being filled up. All kinds of books, stationery and school furniture now on hand at lower prices than ever before. A large invoice of all kinds of slates has just been received and placed on sale at wholesale as well as retail at extremely low prices. The book department will be filled up with a larger stock and greater variety than ever before.

On account of an investment in business in Kansas I am compelled to resign my position as your Captain, and if in the years to come our Chief Executive should call upon the citizens of our country to sustain their national honor, I shall be one of the first to cast my fortunes with the men I once commanded. Deprecating the severance of my connection with you I bid you one and all a good-bye. R. K. SCOTT, Jr. Napoleon, O., Aug. 31, 1886.

STRUCK IT AT LAST.

Gas Struck on the Fair Grounds.

On Tuesday of this week, while workmen were boring a well for water purposes on the County Fair Grounds, south of town, and when down about thirty feet a vein of quick sand was reached and gas in quite a large quantity was struck, much to the amazement of the workmen, who immediately gave the "alarm" and the city was all excitement.—The gas was lighted and shot up a flame three feet high out of a thirteen inch hole, and is still burning." Oil is also noticeable in the water and sand. There is no doubt but that we have both natural gas and oil beneath us, and it only requires experiment to bring it to the surface of mother earth and put to a practical use. Gas on the fair grounds will be quite a send-off for the coming fair, and we are told the fair directors will confine the gas in a pipe and keep it burning during the fair for the benefit of their patrons.

Farmers Association Fair.

The following article of commendation upon the plan of running the fair of the Henry County Farmers Association, appears in the Ohio Farmer of July 17th, 1886. The Farmer says: "Recently we had something to say in regard to summer institutes, since that time the action of the Henry County Farmers Association has come to our knowledge, and their purpose for their next fair seems so praiseworthy that we can not refrain from a word of commendation. The managers this year propose to lop off all features of a questionable nature, and make the fair truly agricultural, approaching closely to an illustrated farmers institute, no racing, gambling or clap-trap of any kind—all business, and that relating to the promotion of the farmers interest. In addition they are to have addresses, and among others have invited the Ohio Farmer's 'Sam,' to give a darty talk, which he will probably do. There is the right ring about the purpose of this society. Fairs are for the benefit of the farmers, not a means of subjecting them to the fleecing process of both managers and sharpers in all kinds of guises. The moment a fair depends upon attractions to draw a crowd, that moment it becomes a hippodrome, and
